

From Noah's Rainbow to Isaac Newton's Prism

In the Torah portion that relates the establishment of the covenant between God and Noah (and all generations to come) by means of the rainbow, the word "covenant" (בְּרִית) is repeated seven times.¹ These seven appearances of the word "covenant" allude to the seven colors of the rainbow studied and documented by Isaac Newton, and to the seven Noahide commandments. The seven colors of the rainbow and the seven Noahide commandments correspond to the seven lower sefirot as follows:²

might	loving-kindness
RED	BLUE
Prohibition against Murder	Prohibition against Adultery
	Beauty
	YELLOW
	Prohibition against Theft
thanksgiving	victory
ORANGE	VIOLET
Prohibition against Blasphemy	Prohibition against Idolatry
	Foundation
	GREEN
	Prohibition against Eating the Flesh of a Live Animal Kingdom
	INDIGO
	Injunction to Establish a Just Legal System

In Hebrew, the sum of the numerical values of Noah (נֹחַ), 58, and Newton (נְיוֹטֹן), 131 is 189. $189 = 7 \cdot 3^3$. The 7 corresponds to the seven covenants (in respect to Noah), the seven colors of the rainbow (in respect to Newton), and the seven Noahide commandments—the seven universal commandments of the Torah given to all righteous gentiles. These three "sevens" are then consummately inter-included by the 3 being raised to the power of 3.

The difference between Newton and Noah is 73, the numerical value of "wisdom" (חִכְמָה). Newton's name by itself is equal to the value of the normally used connotation for the Angel of Death, called the samech-mem (סמאל).

When 73 is added to Noah 6 times ($6 \cdot 73 = 438$, the numerical value of "the House of God, בֵּית יְהוָה) the result is 496, the numerical value of "kingdom" (מַלְכוּת). When 73 is added 11 times, the result is 861, the numerical value of the Holy Temple (בֵּית הַמִּקְדָּשׁ), Isaac Newton's central mystical interest and the inspiration for even much of his work in science. As explained in the Zohar, Noah's Ark, spiritually symbolizes the Holy Temple. Indeed, in Hebrew, the numerical value of Noah's Ark (תֵּבַת נֹחַ) is 860, which with the kollel (the unifying one) equals the numerical value of the Holy Temple (בֵּית הַמִּקְדָּשׁ).

¹. Genesis 8:8-17.

² Often, indigo is not distinguished from violet (victory), and then kingdom is seen to correspond to brown, the color of the earth, created by mixing all of the physical colors together, just as the sefirah of kingdom receives from all of the sefirot above it and possesses no individual color of its own.
